Spook Reviews

Trick or Treat*, Clarkson Potter, $14

It all began with the Druid priests lighting bonfires to keep demons at bay. Now stories, recipes, spells, quotes, and vintage postcards all get stirred into a devilishly delightful book guaranteed to stand out as the perfect gift for the most uninhibited holiday of the year. Trick or Treat — it's frightfully clever and ghastly good fun!

Vampire: The Complete Guide to the World of the Undead*, Viking, $20

Drawing from the dark myths and legends gathered over thousands of years, Vampire is a collection of cautionary tales and hearsay, of written chronicles and first-hand encounters with the black angels that stalk the night. This exquisitely eerie guide catalogs the creature's other sinister attributes and obsessions.

Dracula* • Bram Stoker
Signet Classic, $2.95

As suspenseful the second time you read it as the first, Bram Stoker's classic Dracula is a novel of peculiar power, of hypnotic fascination. Here is the story of an evil ages old and forever new. The reader is warned that he who enters Castle Dracula may not escape its baleful spell, even when he closes this book.

With Francis Ford Coppola's adaption due in theaters this Christmas, now is the perfect time to reacquaint yourself with an old legend.

The Legend of Legrand

by Kenneth J. Souza

"Blood was its Avatar and its seal — the redness and the horror of blood."

- E. A. Poe, "The Masque of the Red Death"

I'm scared. Scared to death.

Not that death frightens me, mind you. I've managed to make a modest mark on this world in a variety of capacities from boatyard foreman to volunteer fireman and will gladly leave having lived a full life.

I was born and raised in this sleepy little whaling town of Mattapoisett, Massachusetts and learned to smile through the daily rituals of being a regular, unknowing citizen. Understandably, some things would occasionally drive that ghastly figure to the front of my mind — a newspaper article about a sinking ship, the smell of saltwater at low tide ... or an ageless, sepia-toned photograph of one of the great whaling barks that once commanded the waters off Shipyard Park.

Recently, I had to stay home for a few days when one of the local papers ran a cover shot of just such a ship. It was too much to turn around and see that creaky, old vessel looming in my peripheral vision every day.

Most times, though, I've been able to swallow the bile that creeps up into the back of my throat, praying to God that the chilling image of him wouldn't drive me insane. Other times, it was all I could do to stay locked behind the closed doors of my Water Street home ... feeling the sudden urge to run rampant through the streets warning the people I've grown to love — and pity — about him.

But what good is a message that would obviously fall on deaf ears?

I argued with myself long and hard before penning this lowly narrative. I have only the faintest hope that it will serve to help the one or two who might lend it some credence. For those who manage to survive the impending tragedy, maybe it will prove, at last, that I wasn't "that senile old coot" which was so commonly whispered after I was long out of earshot.

Truth is, my hearing was never as bad as they thought.

The doctor says I only have a few days at the most left. That's not long for a man who's lived to the ripe old age of 98. And you thought I was older than that!

No. No one's ever old. Just old enough to know better.

It seems almost poetic justice that I won't live to see if he makes good on his promise. Maybe that was part of the plan all along ... force me to live with the horror for 70 years and then deprive me the chance to bear witness to the grand finale, the pièce de resistance, that final curtain call.

Yes. Legrand was no fool. Make that, Legrand is no fool. When people offhandedly speak of men who move mountains, they speak of Legrand. Captain William Legrand.

I sat in disbelief myself the day grandfather motioned me onto a wooden crate in the musty attic of his house and pulled the yellowing, dust-covered book from the shelf, wheezing with those old, rheumy lungs.

The scene is as fresh and clear as this morning's newspaper headlines.

"Are you familiar with Edgar Allan Poe, Charlie?"

"Poe, grandfather? Yes. I read some of his horror stories in school."

"Horror?" he howled, rocking back on his heels. "Reality is the true horror, my boy. Tell me, did you ever read The Gold Bug?"

I searched my feeble memory but could only recall The Raven poem and a story about a guy who walled someone up in a wine cellar.

"No, not that one," I shook my head.

He thumbed open the tome in his hand and turned to a marked page.

There on page 95 was the story he had referred to: The Gold-Bug.

On the same page above the title were some grime marks and a brown thumb print next to some nearly illegible scratchings. Grandfather pointed to the notes and tapped so firmly that the noise echoed off the low rafters.

"This was the copy he gave to me before the ship went down. These are his markings," he hissed at me as if I were ready to attack him. I wasn't about to.

"You don't understand, do you?" he asked.

I shook my head again.

Grandfather lowered himself onto a wooden folding chair next to me. His bad knee cracked as he bent to stoop closer. He turned the book around and put it in my hands.

"All the best stories have a basis in reality. The Scarlet Letter. Moby Dick. And most of Mr. Poe's writings. In this case, he didn't merely base his story in fact, he molded it from fact.

"William Legrand was captain of The Sagamore, one of the biggest whaling barks to sail out of Mattapoisett. Upon returning from one of his lengthier voyages, he immediately dismissed his entire crew and went about stocking up the ship to set sail once more, not saying a word to anyone.

"The townsfolk were rightly puzzled, since Captain Legrand had been born and raised here and was widely respected as one of the most capable and fair seamen in the area. He was generous, forthright and upstanding. Until returning from this one trip."

"I don't understand," I chimed in, hoping to speed things up a bit.

"You will," he smiled. "Several nights later I was working at the docks when Captain Legrand came stumbling over, reeking of booze and swearing up a storm.

"They're all worthless bastards!" he bellowed, blowing the stench of spiced rum into my nostrils. "They took a vow, a blood oath!"

"Then he looked me up and down," grandfather shuddered. "I should have turned around right then and there and gotten on with my life. But alas, I was young, foolish and curious."

"Are you seaworthy, mate?" he asked me. I nodded.

"Then tomorrow you shall accompany me as my First Mate."

"Not knowing where, when or why, I had agreed to join Captain Legrand on his mystery voyage. The next morning he was planted firmly at the bow, his paunch thrust out before him, as I climbed aboard The Sagamore.

"Curious townspeople had, of course, heard the vessel would be leaving that morning and turned out along the docks, hoping to uncover Captain Legrand's scheme. But he was proudly defiant.

"First Mate, we have some business to tend to before hoisting anchor," he said, maintaining his stately pose.

"I walked over to him and gestured that I was unsure of his orders. In one swift move he withdrew a steel dagger from his belt and slashed open his left hand, thrusting it towards me. I heard some audible gasps from those who were watching and immediately backed away.

"With fresh blood oozing through his fingers, he waved me closer. As I approached, he grabbed my right hand, made a smaller, more delicate cut, and pressed it firmly into his bloodied palm.

"This is a blood oath, my friend. What you witness on this voyage shall remain between you and me. Do you swear on your life and before these witnesses and Almighty God?"

How could anyone argue with that?

"I do," I said, only later realizing how close that was to taking a marriage vow.

"Captain Legrand had commissioned a small crew to handle the grunt work under me and within an hour we were well out to sea, riding the waves at a moderate speed. Once everything was under control, he barked some navigational points to a crew member named Jonathan and asked that I join him in his cabin.

"Fearing for my life, I walked a good five paces behind him, making sure that we were within earshot of at least one crew member. I ducked my head into his comfortable starboard cabin and carefully watched as he forced his girth behind a table. Feeling safe, I joined him.

"'You think me mad, mate,' he said, matter-of-factly.

"I didn't respond.

"He wrapped his still-bleeding palm in a rag and slid a book across the table to me."

Here grandfather again tapped the tattered volume in my hands, making an unnerving sound in the quiet attic.

"He seemed both flattered and taken aback by Mr. Poe's account of his exploits and he laughed aloud as he explained the truth behind the story.

"As in the story, he had indeed discovered a map to the lost treasure of Captain Kidd. He had made similar plans to uncover the loot, but didn't have enough money or manpower to do so. So, he put things off ... but not before forcing his crew to take a blood oath of secrecy. He agreed to give them all an equal share, but in due time.

"Months later, just before Captain Legrand was ready to bring home his find to Mattapoisett, he read Mr. Poe's accurate description of himself and his mission, replete with detailed map decodings and markers. Knowing that only a crew member could have tipped off the writer, he dismissed them all and vowed vengeance for their disloyalty.

"'I take a blood oath very seriously, mate,' he said, pulling the book from my hands and leaving a bloodied thumb print on the title page in the process. 'I expect the same from my men.'

"For days we travelled along aimless routes, missing key quadrants due to the incompetence of the hack crew. On the fifth day of the rigorous journey — all Hallow's Eve — The Sagamore was swept into a heavy storm, and Captain Legrand and I had all we could do to keep the inexperienced crew members from abandoning ship.

"In the final throes of the relentless gale, the vessel was thrown upon a reef on the port side, filling the lower quarters with water.

rowboats and cornered me against my cabin door to shout against the storm's ferocity.

"Remember the oath, mate!" he bellowed above the raging wind. Water washed over his intense, stubbled face as he grasped my collar in his thick fist. 'Even unto death.'

"He thrust the water-logged Poe book into my hands and scurried up the mizzen mast. Despite his size, he was remarkably swift and moved with the agility of a man who had spent his entire life aboard a ship.

"I silently jumped into the final rowboat and burned that last image of him into my mind.

"He leaned out over the tilting mast — his eyes burning red — with one fist raised solemnly in the air and screamed at the top of his weakened lungs: 'Vengeance will be mine.

"He repeated the words until his voice went hoarse and the word 'mine' faded into the gurgling sound of swallowed seawater. Just after midnight, the top of the mizzen mast dropped below the turbulent surface of the water.

"He's continued to avenge himself since that fatal day, Charlie," grandfather solemnly said. "Every year since that night, at the stroke of midnight on All Hallow's Eve, a crew member or direct descendent mysteriously dies of 'natural causes.'"

"There's nothing 'natural' about these deaths, Charlie. And he won't stop until each and every family line is cut off."

Grandfather rose from the creaking, wooden folding chair and headed silently down the attic stairs. He didn't wait for my reaction and didn't seem to want one. I stared down at the clothbound volume in my hands and felt a tingling sensation crawl up my arms.

It was a year later, to the date, that Captain Legrand made good on his promise to grandfather. Maybe grandfather knew that his time was up and wanted to ensure that the truth behind the legend lived on. Or maybe it was all part of Legrand's plan, as I suggested earlier.

Grandfather expired in his sleep on the morning of October 31, 1922. I spent the evening walking the streets of town, dodging giggling children as they played their traditional "tricks" on unsuspecting neighbors.

As I neared Shipyard Park, I braced myself against the cold and stared out at the calm water. I felt helpless, wondering whether or not there was any reason for me to disclose grandfather's tale.

Raindrops began falling from the sky, bouncing off a nearby park bench. As I was about to turn around to head home, I caught a glimpse of what looked like an old, windswept whaling bark clipping the water towards town. As my eyes widened, I swore I could see a portly figure dangling from the mizzen mast with a fist clamped high in the air.

It's the morning of October 29, 1992. I know that within the next two days I will die. But I couldn't let things go on without having put my mind at ease about the whole ordeal. People have got to know that he's out there and will continue until every last crew member and descendent is made to pay for their sins.

The "legend" has been whispered before in mixed company. It has been laughed about at the counter of the local pharmacy. Think what you will.

There's no stronger bond than a blood oath. It compels one to silence ... or death.

Years later, Mr. Poe wrote of "the Red Death." I only wish he knew how right he was.

By the time you read this I will be dead. I pray to God that you shan't join me.

the same this year.

"This year, the weather's supposed to be good; we've done well in our collections and our donations so we have more prizes to offer," Mr. Pacheco said. "I really expect to see 500 plus."

Prizes will be awarded to Mattapoisett residents only, although everyone is welcome to join in the proceedings, and will be given for best costume in each of the following categories:

- Grades 1, 2 and 3
- Grades 4, 5 and 6
- Adults
- Scariest.

Judges for the event this year will be Selectman Paul E. Lambalot, Executive Secretary Carol Adams and Postmaster Susan Boyer.

According to Mr. Pacheco, some of the prizes include mountain bikes, radios and skateboards. The event began over 30 years ago with Police Chief Kenney in an attempt to keep "trick or treaters" off the streets and get them involved with the community.

"It gives the kids something to do and something to look forward to in terms of designing their own costumes," he said. "And it does keep them all in once place for awhile."

The Annual Parade is sponsored by the Mattapoisett Police Department and made possible through the generous contributions of Mattapoisett residents and businesses, who outdid themselves in terms of financial support this year, Mr. Pacheco said.

"The citizens and the businesses really came through for us this year," he said. "We collected more this year than we ever have before and were able to buy over $800 in candy alone."

The parade will kick off at 6:30 pm from Church Street at the Side Street Restaurant, down to Main Street onto Water Street to Barstow Street and return to Center School where candy will be distributed to all marchers.

Costume prizes will then be awarded.

Adoptable Animals

Feeling Blue ... Or Grey?

No, this isn't an article on Civil War uniforms, it's our weekly feature on adoptable pets in the area, brought to you in cooperation with the local chapter of Animal Umbrella, Inc. This weekly forum offers a chance for you to both gain a furry little friend for your abode while helping to get a homeless pet off the streets.

The national organization, which is dedicated to finding an alternative to killing, is headed on the local level by Priscilla Thompson and Mary Lou Kobak, who work to gather abandoned and/or homeless animals in the region so that families who legitimately want a pet can get one — free for the asking!

This week's offering goes by the name of "Greyland," and is a grey and white male cat who is seven years old and has had all his shots. Due to his age and space limitations, if he isn't adopted soon, he may be put to sleep.

Also, the two tigers which were adopted a couple of weeks ago were, unfortunately, returned due to an allergic reaction on the part of the owner. They are now up for re-adoption.

If you are interested in these or any other "adoptable pets" in the tri-town area, just call either Priscilla at 758-2896 or Mary Lou at 994-6168.

According to the group's capable leaders, new adoptees are arriving every week. Although that puts the burden on them to find homes for their other "roomies," it gives you another option every week from which to choose that "special" companion.

We've had little to no response on our call for puppies and other household pets in the area. Please feel free to call us at The Wanderer

Mattapoisett Selectmen's Meeting

October 27, 1992

A regular meeting of the Mattapoisett Board of Selectmen was called to order on Tuesday, October 27 at 7:04 pm by Chairman John N. DeCosta. Also present were Selectman Paul E. Lambalot, Selectman Daniel O. Mahoney and Executive Secretary Carol Adams.

After approving the minutes of the meeting of October 20, 1992, the board next signed payrolls, bills, licenses, permits and outgoing correspondence for the week.

Since Monday (October 26) was Ms. Adams birthday, Selectman Lambalot's wife, Nancy, provided the board and guests with delicious baked brownies. Everyone wished Ms. Adams a happy, albeit belated, birthday.

Chairman DeCosta next cited the following meetings scheduled throughout the week:

- October 31 — Mattapoisett Police Department's Halloween Parade at 6:30 pm
- November 3 — Election Day (polls will open at 7:00 am and close at 8:00 pm).

The board next reviewed outgoing correspondence to Taylor Seafood, Inc. confirming that their previously scheduled Aquacultural Grant Hearing has been postponed. Neither Ms. Adams nor members of the Board of Selectmen were sure when the Hearing will be rescheduled.

Chairman DeCosta next discussed a recent tour of the town which he and Highway Surveyor Wesley Bowman took to examine road surfaces. Mr. DeCosta displayed a map which outlined some of the more pivotal areas of town which desperately need road repairs. Among these were sections of Cathaway Lane, Tinkham Lane, Brandt Island Road, North Street and Route 6.

Although the repairs need to be done soon, Chairman DeCosta was concerned with the expense of starting long-term construction projects. "We're going to have to look at the associated Engineering costs before making these road repairs," he said. "I hope that under Chapter 90 we'll be able to apply for some matching state funds."

Selectman Lambalot also suggested that a regional approach might be worth looking into. "Maybe there might be some money for regional projects with abutting towns that we could consider tapping," he said.

Chairman DeCosta said Mr. Bowman will be coming up with a more detailed study of the roads which need first consideration when putting in bids for repairs. The board will keep this matter on their agenda for future discussion.

Under incoming correspondence for the week, Chairman DeCosta cited a notice from the Board of Assessors announcing that the town's tax rate was certified for 1993 at $10.54 for 1993.

According to Assessor Michael O'Brien, the new rate is up $1.05 from last year's rate of $9.49, which reflects an average increase for area towns. Mr. O'Brien further broke down the $1.05 increase into three distinct increments:

- 8 cents — represents a significant loss in real estate value due to damage incurred by Hurricane Bob last year

- 64 cents — represents the amount of money levied in the wake of the town's passage of a Proposition 2 1/2 override

- 33 cents — represents a general increase in tax assessments which is in line with the annual rate of inflation.

The Board of Assessors was proud to report that out of 350 municipalities in the state, they were the 100th to certify their new tax rate, which reflects a job well done in terms of getting the necessary paperwork and process completed.

Tax bills are due to be mailed out within two weeks and should be received by residents in early November.

On the same topic, a letter was also received from the Department of Revenue's Director of Accounts, Mariellen P. Murphy, thanking the Assessors, Town Accountant, Tax Collector and Town Clerk for their swift work in setting the new tax rate.

The board next received a letter from F. Ellis FitzPatrick of the Massachusetts Department of Revenue notifying them that $203,066 in unencumbered excess and deficiency funds/surplus revenue available on July 1, 1992 for the Old Colony Regional Vocational Technical High School District.

Mr. Richard P. Devine, a resident of New Bedford, sent a memo to the Board of Selectmen concerning research for news and/or scientific reports on "environmental protection." The board said they would take Mr. Devine's proposal "under advisement" and consider granting him a personal interview before the board to further discuss his proposition.

Notice of the Plymouth County Selectmen's Association Fall Dinner Meeting to be held on November 5 at 6:00 pm at the Riverside Restaurant in Middleboro was sent to the board. Guest speaker for the event will be Susan F. Tierney, Secretary of Environmental Affairs. Cost for the event is $13 per person and Chairman DeCosta and Ms. Adams said they would be attending.

A notice was received informing the board that the "Hands Across the River" alliance plans to celebrate the Acushnet River by holding an "adoption party" on November 8 from 1:30 to 3:30 pm. The party, to take place on the banks of the Acushnet River, will also celebrate Hands Across the River's participation in the Massachusetts Department of Fisheries, Wildlife and Environmental Law Enforcement's Adopt-A-Stream Program.

At 7:30 pm, David Ames, Manager of the Hearty House Restaurant, which recently opened on Route 6, came before the board to introduce himself and apply for a liquor license transfer at the establishment.

Mr. Ames is currently under an agreement with the owner of the business, whereby he will be leasing the facility beginning January 1, 1993 with an option to purchase within two years. The property, formerly the site of The Melting Pot restaurant, recently opened under Mr. Ames' management.

The board unanimously approved a liquor license transfer for Mr. Ames and wished him well in his new venture.

Resident John Atkinson, who was present at the meeting, asked Selectmen if they were aware of Fairhaven's trucking trash to the Mattapoisett landfill and if they agreed with the practice.

Selectman Mahoney explained that the Sanitary Landfill is autonomous and does not need to answer to the Board of Selectmen. He also said that everything which goes in and out of the landfill is well screened to follow state statutes.

Mr. Atkinson also wanted to know about a meeting of the ORR District School Committee held the previous night during which salary increases were discussed for several administrative positions in the district (see related story). He wanted first to know why the meetings are not widely publicized and second, why the school committee has total control over setting teachers' salaries without having to answer to residents or the Selectmen.

Chairman DeCosta explained that having been elected to office by residents of the town, the members of the school committee have the authority to set salaries and fees for their fiscal budget. He suggested to Mr. Atkinson that he attend the meetings and make his concerns known to the members of the committee.

At 8:00 pm, Phil Gaudet, a Mattapoisett resident and employee at the Capeway Veterinary Hospital, came before the board to discuss his concerns over the recent outbreak of rabies in the state.

Mr. Gaudet explained that the matter began to cause some concern for officials in southeastern Massachusetts when an inordinate number of cases were reported in northern parts of the state, specifically 4-6 cases in Leominster and Fitchburg. As a result, local health officials want to let the public know that the disease is out there, although there have been no reported cases in this area.

Mr. Gaudet, who is experienced with rabies cases, explained that the disease is transmitted mainly through saliva and is most commonly transferred through a bite wound. Once infected, the incubation for an animal varies between a few days up to six months. Most infected animals will behave normally and then experience sudden personality changes whereby they will turn on you.

It is for this reason that Mr. Gaudet warned all children to keep away from wild animals — especially raccoons, skunks and squirrels, who most commonly contract and transmit the disease.

The board also took under advisement Mr. Gaudet's suggestion to prepare for any potential outbreak by informing local police and health officials of the possible risks involved with a rabid animal. The best advice Mr. Gaudet had for residents was to keep away from any wild animal, especially one of the "high incident" animals seen during the day, since they are essentially nocturnal creatures.

If children are bitten by any animal, including domestic pets, parents should immediately consult a doctor as a precautionary measure.

He also advised that people have both their dogs and cats vaccinated against the disease. Only dogs are required by law to receive the rabies vaccination, but cats carry the disease just as readily, if not more so, than dogs. A special Rabies Clinic for dogs and cats will be held on November 15 at the Mattapoisett Fire Station between 10:00 am and 12 noon. Vaccinations will cost $10 per pet.

"It's not something people should panic about," Mr. Gaudet said. "But I think they should, at least, be aware that rabies is out there and they should take the necessary precautions against it."

There being no further business to discuss, the board said they would convene for a short meeting next week (November 3) just to follow through on regular business. A

Marion Selectmen's Meeting

October 27, 1992

By Chandra Dewing

A regular meeting of the Marion Board of Selectmen was called to order on Tuesday, October 27 at 7:00 pm by Chairwoman Loretta B. Schaefer. Also present were Selectman Edwin "Ted" Pratt Jr., Selectman James S. Dougall, Executive Secretary Ray E. Pickles and Secretary

After signing warrants and bonds and approving the minutes of the October 20, 1992 meeting, Robert C. Zora and Richard Guerzoni from the Department of Public Works (DPW) met with the Board of Selectman to discuss the water situation. The water towers have been chlorinated, are back on line and are presently being sampled to insure the safety of the public's drinking water.

If all goes well, the boil order should be lifted by Friday (October 30), after approval from the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). Reviewing the water supply is of the utmost importance, and the DPW responded quickly and accurately to the plaguing problem with their highly standardized tests and measures. As Selectman Pratt put it, "they should be highly commended for their professional work."

Betsy R. Parks wrote a letter to the board commenting about the ambiguousness and slowness of receiving of the boil order. She did not know if she was in an area where was where it was necessary to boil the water. She feels that the information about the boil order should have been more accurate and presented sooner.

Robert C. Zora discussed the revitalization of the road on Front Street. Apparently, when the street was pulverized during construction, a manhole became filled with gravel, thereby resulting in a sewer blockage. Reconstruction of the street is underway and should be finished in the near future.

Karen Walega, Regional Sanitarian, met with the Board to discuss precautionary measures to avoid any rabies problems from occurring in the area. Ms. Walega stressed that education about the potential rabies dilemma should be regionalized.

People are advised to stay clear of any strange or sickly animals, including livestock, especially since they may be at risk of contracting the potentially fatal rabies disease. Any animal that is suspected of being infected should be reported to the Police Station, who in turn will contact the Animal Control Officers. The officers will then take the necessary steps, by either destroying or isolating the infected animal.

The appeal of the Zone Enforcement Case which prevents Victor and Victoria Brier's use of the property on County Road as a truck terminal has been dismissed. The Briers will need to comply with the court order and cease using the property.

Another issue discussed included the statewide restrictions on the disposal of glass and metal containers, and yard waste, commonly referred to as "waste bans," required by regulation to become effective on December 31, 1992. The department has changed the date to April 1, 1993 so that the communities will have extra time to insure that their recycling programs are properly formed.

These restrictions will be beneficial to the community because they will limit waste to existing disposal facilities and lower the need for landfills and incinerators, thus contributing to the betterment of the environment.

George A. Jennings, Shellfish Officer, was recently notified by the Division of Marine Fisheries that Sippican Harbor (Marion Inner) will be open to shellfishing starting Sunday, November 1, 1992. However, some small areas in the Inner Harbor will remain closed.

Since property values are decreasing,

Mariellen P. Murphy, Director of Accounts of the Department of Revenue, has announced that the tax rates for the fiscal year 1993 will increase from $9.10 to $10.40. Bills will be mailed out on October 30, 1992 and are due thirty days thereafter. Next year, a quarterly billing system will be installed for convenience and the improvement of cash flow to the town.

Ronald R. Bourne, P.E. of Bourne Consulting Engineering announced in his letter that Long Wharf Trust is currently applying for a waterways license. Otherwise known as "Central Wharf," the property has been in existence since the early 1800's but was never issued a license. Several projects added to the existing wharf have been licensed, but never the original wharf. The Department of Waterways will determine if a license is required.

A celebration of the Acushnet River will be conducted on November 8, 1992 by holding an "adoption party." Hands Across the Water will be sponsoring the event for the purpose of uniting people together to address resources and problems of the river.

Correspondence was read concerning the results of the microscopic particle analysis done on the sample from Mary's Pond Well Field in Marion. Surface water indicators (i.e. chlorophyll-containing algae) were found in the sample, although the numbers were extremely low and not very significant.

The Mothers Club is sponsoring an annual Halloween Parade on Saturday, October 31 at 3:00 pm. The festivities will start at Island Wharf and end at Sippican Elementary School. Reflective tape and plastic trick-or-treat bags will be handed out and tips on safety will be discussed.

An Indian Native Pow-Wow was suggested to take place in Washburn Park. The wish for the friendly event to take place can be granted by the Board of Selectman, but overnight camping is not permissible.

There being no further business or matters to come before the board, the Board of Selectmen adjourned for the evening.

October 26, 1992 at 7:00 pm by Chairman Harry A. Brown Jr. Also present were Selectman Lorraine R.C. Roy and Secretary Shirley Ferreira.

Chairman Brown began tending to business by motioning to approve the minutes of the meetings of October 19, 1992 and October 23, 1992, respectively, which were seconded and made unanimous by Selectman Roy.

Mr. Brown called upon Frederick Underhill, who is the Selectmen's representative on the Assawompsett Ponds Advisory Committee, to update the board on what the committee has done recently. Mr. Underhill began by explaining that the city of New Bedford has still not signed an agreement drawn up by the committee to afford area towns the opportunity to gain something in return for the city's tapping their water supply.

The agreement stems back years to the point when New Bedford first started drawing from the Assawompsett Pond complex which borders four of the towns in question: Rochester, Lakeville, Middleboro and Freetown. Since the city was taking full advantage of the smaller towns' water resources, they asked for something in return — either in the form of a regular payment or tax incentive.

Since that time, the towns have received $1390 in lieu of taxes on an annual basis and nothing more. The purpose of this committee has been to forge new ground and get a more substantial incentive in return. But both New Bedford and Taunton, who benefit from the use of the ponds, have not been willing to comply.

As a result, Mr. Underhill and other members of the committee have agreed that they should continue on as a united force in the hopes of getting someone to hear their concerns.

"I'd like to see us continue to work together as much as possible," Mr. Underhill said. "We certainly can make more noise as a group than we can on an individual basis."

An upcoming meeting of the committee is slated for Wednesday, November 4 at 7:00 pm in the Middleboro Town Hall. Since Mr. Underhill cannot attend, both Chairman Brown and Selectman Roy agreed to participate.

Selectmen next met with Town Accountant Claudette Coutu, Georgia Chamberlain of the Conservation Commission, and Deborah Pickup of the Board of Health to discuss some options as to office space in Town Hall.

Chairman Brown explained that with the new computer system coming to do town payroll "in house," Ms. Coutu is not going to have enough room in her present office. So Mr. Brown suggested that the Board of Health and Conservation Commission move to the large Conference Room where a partition would be installed to cut down on disturbances from town elections and hearings. This way, Ms. Coutu could move into the office now being used by the Board of Health.

Ms. Chamberlain wished to offer some other options, including putting the computer setup in the existing Selectmen's office, leasing office space at the Plumb Corner Mall across the street, and inquiring as to the use of the old vestry at the nearby Congregational Church.

Chairman Brown appreciated her suggestions, but pointed out that the Selectmen need access to the large library of state law books now in place in their office, that the town doesn't have any money to expend on leasing further office space and that the church is planning to use their facilities to hold religion classes.

Ms. Chamberlain also suggested moving the town's sole voting poll location to either one of the schools or fire department locations.

Chairman Brown said that might be another option to be looked into.

Ms. Pickup agreed that with the exception of a "private space" for Regional Sanitarian Karen Walega, the Board of Health could function fine in the Conference Room area correspondence for the week, beginning with a letter from Old Rochester Regional High School informing the town that they will be offering some outdated items for either purchase or to be donated to a charitable cause. The items include old textbooks and desk furniture.

The town received a Payroll Audit Credit in the amount of $6,243 from the Massachusetts Interlocal Insurance Agency (MIIA), which the town decided to utilize for an insurance plan earlier this year. Since signing on with MIIA, a cooperative group of municipalities in Massachusetts, Chairman Brown said the town has realized considerable savings.

Selectmen received notification from the Department of Revenue of excess deficiency funds for Old Colony Regional Vocational Technical High School in the amount of $203,066. Despite this figure, however, Chairman Brown explained that the number is inaccurate in that it includes monies taken in for tuition and other expenses as of July 1, 1992. As a result, the figure is grossly exaggerated.

Another memo came in from Regional Sanitarian Karen Walega regarding a Rabies Incident Form which she advises be used by dispatchers in the event of any cases cited in the area. Chairman Brown reminded all residents, especially those with younger children, to keep away from raccoons, who are the primary carriers of the disease. Some cases have been discovered in the northern part of the state but can easily spread to areas like Rochester, Marion and Mattapoisett.

Both Chairman Brown and Selectman Roy moved that the recommended Rabies Incident Form be employed by town dispatchers.

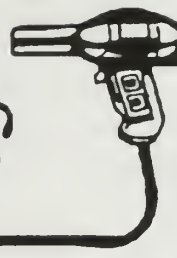

A manual explaining how the state calculates Cherry Sheet figures for each fiscal year was also sent to the Board of Selectmen for future reference. Chairman Brown mused that the calculations explained in the book — which account for the annual dispersion of over $2.5 billion in local aid — are too difficult to understand even for the most adept mathematicians.

The following Board of Appeals decisions, officiated on October 8, 1992, were then read into the record:

- On the petition of Harry Smith, Jr. for a Variance under Section VIII B of the Protective By-Laws from side set back requirements, the board decided to issue the variance with the stipulation that the addition is to be as shown on a plot plan as submitted.

- On the petition of William R. O'Neil for a Special Permit under Section IV E-s of the Protective By-Laws to allow the partial conversion of an industrial building to office space, the board decided to issue the permit with the following stipulations: that Mr. O'Neil make efforts to gain an additional curb cut from the State; that the interior "as built" floor plan be provided to the Board of Appeals within 30 days of issuing the permit; and that additional screening be provided between Route 28 and the building.

Chairman Brown next read a letter from Police Officer Bruce Torres who announced the retirement of both himself and his K-9 partner, Coty, from the Rochester Police Department. The detective, who served nine years on the force, applauded the efforts of the town in getting the K-9 program off the ground, which Officer Torres said he proudly served throughout his tenure. The retirement will become effective on November 11, 1992.

The following meeting notices were next announced by Chairman Brown:

- The Plymouth County Selectmen's Association Fall Dinner Meeting will take place on Thursday, November 5, 1992. Both Chairman Brown and Selectman Roy said they would be attending the event.

• A Workshop for Public Officials will be held on November 5, 1992, sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service. The cost for the workshop is $25 per person and responses must be received by November 2, 1992.

• An invitation from the Hands Across the River Coalition was sent to the board. The symbolic event will take place on November 8, 1992 at 1:30 pm at the Belleville Avenue soccer field in New Bedford.

• Nomination information was sent in for the 1992 Fenn Award for Political Leadership. Nominees must be 35 years of age or younger, which Chairman Brown said ruled him out.

A legal bill for services rendered during the month of September was received from Kopelman & Paige, P.C. for $276.65, which the board signed and approved.

Chairman Brown and Selectman Roy next signed the warrant for the upcoming Special Town Meeting slated for November 9, 1992. The warrant will include the following three articles:

• Article 1 — To see if the Town will vote to raise and appropriate the sum of $30,000 and amend Article 3, Line Item 63, 5/18/92, as follows:

equipping, remodeling and making of extraordinary repairs to the buildings and related facilities of the District.

- Article 3 — To see if the Town will vote to transfer from available funds a sum of money to reduce the tax rate, or take any other action thereon.

Chairman Brown explained that if Article 2 passes the Town Meeting floor, it will be included on the November 18 Special Town Election ballot, along with the two candidates seeking to fill a vacancy on the Board of Selectmen.

Under New Business, Selectman Roy noted that she received a letter that afternoon (Monday) citing an error in the Veterans' Benefits salary line item in the recently approved town budget. According to the letter, the item is off by $278.09, which will accrue throughout the fiscal year, but both Selectman Roy and Chairman Brown agreed it was too late to put on the forthcoming Special Town Meeting warrant, for which article submissions were closed on the previous Friday.

Since there are no scheduled matters or hearings to come before the board next week, Selectman Roy moved that they cancel the next Board of Selectmen meeting, slated for November 2, 1992. Chairman Brown seconded and made the motion unanimous.

There being no further business to discuss, the board voted to adjourn at 8:06 pm.

November 14 dinner meeting off to a fine start with PKL Mike as Tailtwister Pro-tem. He weakened the mighty King Lion right off the bat with fining him for a down side-up lectern and missing his "official" King Lion's Pin. PKL Mike did not quit there and preceded to live up to his reputation, going around to the various tables and increasing the Kitty's coffers. Lion Mike should give in-coming Tailtwisters lessons on quarter squeezing.

Mary Edmiston, Director of Camp Massasoit, gave a fine presentation and encouraged everyone to visit the newly renovated facility.

Children's Paperback Book Fair

Volunteers at Sippican Elementary

In Marion, the first week of November marks the 16th anniversary of the Sippican School Children's Paperback Book Fair, sponsored by the VASE program.

For four days every November, the area's largest and most diverse selection of paperback books for children is found in the auditorium of Sippican School, on Spring Street in Marion. The Fair's theme this year is "Flying High," reflecting the enthusiasm of children who know that all books displayed at the Book Fair may be purchased and taken home — there are no order forms to fill out, and no waiting.

Browsers will find both fiction and non-fiction, workbooks, picture books, jokes and mazes, and classics new and old for pre-school children to age 13, as well as board books for toddlers. Paperback prices average $3.95 to $5.95, but a "bargain table" of lower-priced books will also be available.

The Book Fair opens with class visits by Kindergarten and Grade 1 on Monday, November 2. The public is welcome during school hours (9:00 am - 3:00 pm) until the Fair closes at 12:00 noon on Thursday, November 6. Special extended hours on Tuesday, November 3 from 9:00 am - 7:00 pm, and on Wednesday, November 4, from 9:00 am - 5:00 pm should make a Book Fair visit convenient for busy parents and grandparents.

For many area people, Christmas shopping begins at "Flying High." Adults will find a selection of fine holiday books, illustrated books, and other special hardcover volumes appropriate for gifts, made available through The Bookstall in Marion.

Proceeds of the Book Fair are used to support special programs of the Sippican School Library/Media Center.

LAN Novell News Release

Old Colony Regional Vocational Technical High School has recently acquired a networked computer system consisting of 20 powerful workstations. This Novell LAN (Local Area Network) makes it simpler for students to understand the use of computers. Not only are computer operations easier to learn, but applications of various popular programs such as Windows 3.1, Word Perfect, Lotus 123 and D-Base can be learned faster and with less confusion.

For the technically minded, the new network system boasts 80386 Microprocessors operating at 25 MHz. The main server sports a 600 MB hard drive serving all twenty computer stations. All stations have Super-VGA color graphics, both 5-1/4 and 3-1/2 inch with density floppy drives as well as the Unix Microsoft compatible mouse.

The lab is accessible to all disciplines of the school — shops, academics, special needs, and adult learners.

The network advantage lays plans for a highly functional computer base curriculum, with expansion capabilities and flexibility, assured through Novell to prepare students for college or the workplace.

Lloyd Center

Acushnet River Canoe Trip

When one thinks of spending a quiet day in the country, canoeing down a clean waterway and taking in the sights and sounds of the wildlife that lives along it, the Acushnet River is not the first river that comes to mind.

The Lloyd Center for Environmental Studies invites you to discover the Acushnet River's finer points on Saturday, October 31. Explore the little known upper reaches of this river, which, despite emptying into a polluted New Bedford Harbor, actually begins at the city's main drinking water supply and works its way through healthy marshlands and cranberry bogs.

The trip, which begins at 9:00 am and should be completed by 4:00 pm, will begin with a review of paddling skills and canoe safety. Participants should bring their own lunches and plenty of liquid refreshments.

The cost of the trip is $15 for Lloyd Center members, $20 for non-members. There is an additional charge of $4 per person for canoe rental, but participants are welcome to supply their own canoes.

All Hallow's Eve

Spend this Halloween learning about the various components of nature that have become commonplace during this season. Geared for kids, children will dress up and participate in activities including an owl prowl, pumpkin drawing, and learning about the creatures of the night. The fee for this event is $4 per child with adults admitted free with their children.

Rocks and Minerals

On November 1, Hydrogeologist Ethan Guiles will be conducting a workshop on the rocks and minerals of the known universe. During the course of the Workshop, participants will have the opportunity to learn how to identify and collect unusual rocks. This workshop is sure to enlighten all of the participants who attend. Rocks and Minerals will begin at 1:30 pm and conclude at 3:30 pm.

The fee for this workshop is free to members, $6 for non-members, and $1 for children under 12.

HALLOWEEN HORRORS

By Rob Gonsalves

Like a killer in the dark, Halloween is creeping up on us again. Some people celebrate by dressing up and going to dances or parties, while others stay at home, turn off the lights to discourage trick-or-treaters, and hold their own video horror movie marathon. For those in the latter category, here are a few suggestions to make any horrorthon a memorable one...

- Night of the Living Dead (1968) — These days, when movies are absolutely lubricated with gore, it's hard to realize how groundbreaking and shocking this seminal zombie film was. Nearly 25 years later, it has lost none of its impact. Director George Romero (who also made the sequels Dawn of the Dead and Day of the Dead) creates a bleak, gray atmosphere in which anything can happen and anyone can die. As taut a piece of filmmaking as you'll find, Night is also remarkable for the number of taboos it shatters. Stephen King has suggested that you see it alone for maximum chills. A+

- Halloween (1978) — Dressed in a jumpsuit and an expressionless mask that hovers in the darkness when he wears it, Michael Myers comes home to sleepy Haddonfield, Illinois and gets busy with a kitchen knife. John Carpenter's powerful, extraordinarily popular chiller paved the way for hundreds of rip-offs and four lame sequels, yet it still holds up and outclasses the rest. Says psychiatrist Donald Pleasance of the killer, "They'll see him in every back yard and look for him in every house." So will you. A+

- Alien (1979) — Ridley Scott (Thelma and Louise, 1492) directed this dark, cynical, stylish hit that tied everyone's stomach into knots. The most famous moment is the chestbuster shot, with the tiny alien tearing its way out of John Hurt's belly. But what really makes Alien unique is its psychosexual imagery — the monster with its thrusting, toothy tongue; the womblike interiors of the alien spacecraft. Trivia: Scott intentionally obscured much of the dialogue to intensify the audience's disorientation. A+

- Phantasm (1979) — "If this one doesn't scare you ... you're already dead!" promised the ads for this bizarre, unforgettable horror movie. I can't do justice to the plot in the space I have, so let's just say it's about a teenage boy, a ghoulish mortician, a cemetery where corpses are shrunk into hooded dwarves and sent to another planet, and a flying silver ball with a drill that burrows into its victims' heads and a tube that sucks the blood out. And I haven't even gotten to the really weird parts. A surprise cult hit from director Don Coscarelli, who was only in his mid-twenties when he made it. A

- The Re-Animator (1985) and Evil Dead 2: Dead by Dawn (1987) — If you have a strong stomach and a taste for the absurd, why not set up a video double feature with these terrific splatter comedies? The gore is so excessive that you never take it seriously; it's just cartoonish fun. In The Re-Animator, a mad scientist injects corpses with a "re-agent" that brings them back to life (for want of a better word). When a slimy doctor tries to interfere, the scientist decapitates him and re-animates both the head and the body, which leads to the most outrageous sex scene ever filmed.

In Evil Dead 2, basically a more expensive remake of Evil Dead, a college student finds himself at war with demonic spirits and, eventually, his own body. When his demon-possessed hand starts cackling and breaking dishes over his head, he just slices the hand off with a chainsaw, sneering, "Who's laughing now?" Both: A+

COLIC TABLETS

The chances are you don't call it "colic" – a lot of mothers these days don't – but babies still get mild indigestion and sudden gas pains. Generations of mothers have used Hyland's Colic Tablets to soothe and quiet babies with mild tummy aches. Of course, if condition persists or intensifies, consult your physician, but mild upsets usually respond well to these tiny tablets.

BED WETTING TABLETS

It isn't his fault, but that doesn't help much. He knows it's a problem for you too, and that's what worries him. The Homeopathic remedies in Hyland's Bed Wetting Tablets have been used for just this problem for years and years. Of course, you should check with your physician to be sure there is no serious cause, but if there is nothing really wrong, this tiny tablet can help a whole lot.

COUGH SYRUP with Honey

How often have you worried about the words on cough medicine – "Children 1/2 adult dose"? Here is a cough remedy formulated especially for children using safe, natural ingredients in a simple syrup with pleasant-tasting honey. Of course, a high fever or persistent coughing calls for a consultation with your doctor, but the irritating cough that goes with the common head cold has responded to this cough syrup for generations.

C-PLUS Cold Tablets

When your child starts to sneeze and sniffle, you don't have to feel helpless. For generations wise mothers have used Hyland's C-Plus to ease the drippy misery. Each tablet contains three Homeopathic botanicals and a Potassium compound which relieve the uncomfortable symptoms. Especially formulated for years one through six.
